FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

TRIUMPH LEARNING WELCOMES MIKE MORLEY AS NEW PUBLISHER

New Talent Joins Acclaimed Publishing Company

New York, NY, November 2012—Triumph Learning, the leader in proven curriculum solutions, has announced the appointment of Mike Morley as publisher, effective September 24, 2012.

Mr. Morley comes to Triumph Learning from the International Education Services division of McGraw-Hill Education. Mike was with McGraw-Hill since 2008, as Vice President for Alternative Reading, Literature and Language Arts, prior to becoming Vice President of Curriculum for the International Education Services division. Prior to McGraw-Hill, Morley was Senior Vice President of Product Development at Sundance/Newbridge Educational Publishing, then a Houghton Mifflin Harcourt company. Additionally, Mike has held executive-level editorial roles at Zaner-Bloser, Voices Publishing, and Houghton Mifflin. He began his career in education as a teacher at the Commonwealth Day School, a non-profit elementary school in Boston serving inner-city youth, and holds a MEd from Lesley College and a BA from Reed College.

At Triumph Learning, Mike will oversee the editorial, design and production, and digital product development teams. He will be responsible for helping to guide the development of future print and digital product lines that build on Triumph Learning's reputation for excellence.
